

Capable Communication

Capable and Microsoft

Capable is now happy to officially recommend Microsoft Office Professional 97 as well as Office Professional 95. These make excellent companion products to Capable itself and extend the features that you have using Capable on its own.

We have submitted our first application to Microsoft for their formal approval process and we'll let you know as soon as the product gains their 'stamp of approval'.

Enhancements

Since December, we've continued to develop key features to add to the extensive suite already available with Capable. Here is a few more of those enhancements:

- We've really boosted the speed of the appointment book making it much easier to use.
- Added features to allow you much greater control over the colours used in the appointment book.
- Extended the functionality in the referee mail outs and family mail outs to give you more control and quality in your letters.
- Enhanced the statistics print out by allowing you to condense the print out for faster results.
- Added a legend to our schedule print out for easier use by patients.
- Added date buttons to the patient info screen for easier entry of patient notes.
- Added a feature to allow you to move a family's appointments as a group.
- Added features to allow for much greater control of the appointment book layout, fonts and sizing.
- Several new features in patient tracking, including reminders, forced letters and several referee features.
- Added a new provider balancing feature to help clinics that pay their practitioner by collection rather than billing.

In addition to these advantages, a number of small problems have been corrected and many small enhancements have been coded to make the software easier and friendlier for users.

Good News for Support Members

As you are probably well aware, Capable is growing and growing fast! So much so, that we've had to sit down and make some important decisions regarding our expansion. Issues like Quality Assurance, marketing and ongoing support have all been taken into careful consideration. The good news is that we now have dedicated support staff four days every week. This means faster response to your problems and faster development of features that are currently in the pipeline. What we are now asking you, is to help us streamline our support services. You can do this by:

- Taking advantage of our priority fax-back facility. The quickest response we offer now is a return fax. Our phone service is still available for low-priority calls and problems that can't be solved with a fax.
- Let us know about any problems as fast as possible. We want you to be confident with our product and 95% isn't good enough.
- Watch our web page on the internet for new features and new support services.
- Tell us what you want. We need your feedback desperately so we can give you the best service possible.

Capable 'off the shelf'

Capable is now opening negotiations with major Australian computer vendors to sell our product 'off the shelf'. Not only will this make the product a lot more available to the Australian public, it will also allow us greater expansion to provide better support services. We are planning a major marketing release at the end of August to promote the product.

To allow us to have a boxed version of Capable, ready to go, we have been forced to place a cut off date of August 1 on our current enhancements. Between now and then, we'll be putting a major effort into tidying everything up - fixing any bugs and adding the last few features we still have on our books. This formal version will also include new help screens, a printed manual and better wizards to help users get around the product. During the month of August, we'll be packaging everything together so that it's ready for release at the end of August.

As a support member, you will be entitled to all of these benefits.

What you'll see on our web site from that day forward will be two versions available for download - one will be the officially tested, bug free version of Capable (recent to within a few weeks). The other will be the latest, leading edge Beta Capable that has all the newest features. You'll be free to decide which version you're more comfortable with, and you'll be able to freely swap between the two if you try one and don't like it.

Capable Internet Security is now coming on line. You should have received a user name and password with this newsletter. If you have not, contact Capable immediately to find out what they are. Within 14 days, only authorised support members will be able to access our downloads area.
